

AN EIGHT-WEEK FAMILY PILOT · FUNDED BY THE SCHOOL

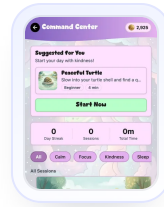

The school day ends. The growing doesn't.

Finish routines, earn coins

A daily check-in

A moment to breathe

How the eight weeks run

What it asks of the school — and what it doesn't

Your whole role

- ✓ Let interested families know it's available (we write the note)
- ✓ Host or allow one kickoff and one closing session
- ✓ Your counselor's one written answer at the end

What you never do

- No roster, no student records — parents sign up themselves
- No platform to run, no training, no staff accounts
- No family billed, and nothing that renews on its own

What everyone gets

FAMILIES GET

Full access for all eight weeks — the school covers it — and the core app stays free to them after; the paid plan adds only extra worlds, companions, backgrounds, and companion looks. No ads shown to kids, no strangers, no child data sold, no AI in the kids' experience or the parent dashboard.

YOU GET

A short written summary of what these families reported — did nagging drop, did parents reward more, did the habit hold, would they recommend it — and a real decision: fund the year for every family, or stop.

THE NEXT STEP

Green-light the pilot.

$4,900 flat, invoiced to the school. Continue for the year, decided by the end of the eight weeks, and the full $4,900 comes off the package price. One short agreement — sign it yourself, or take it to your board.

Joseph Yelle · (910) 593-7070 · joseph@kudokids.org

Start the conversation →
kudokids.org/schools